Question 1 -

1. (5 pts)

The client's browser will connect to the server that uses the user interface this user interface will then connect to the various parts of the system. In the business layer, the client will be able to access pricing browsing searching the cart purchasing as well as the transition logic. In the data layer, you will find inventory for the website the accounts available promotional's to be shown to the client. The transaction history of the client and tracking of the client's packages. There will also be access to authentication security and communication that would be cross-cutting because multiple sections will use this in order to keep security tight.

2. (10 pts)

3. (10 pts)